

Gas Update . . . Who's Open When

Police Chief Randolph Feola has contacted all gasoline station operators in Cohasset to determine when gas will be available for motorists.

Feola is responding to the Governor's request made to communities for coordination of the opening and closing of gasoline stations. Feola was unable to answer for operators, however, questions about local attempts for set-aside allotments for operators willing to stay open on Sundays and holidays.

So far, gas stations in Cohasset haven't been open on Sundays. And only a few have attempted to remain open for gas on Saturdays. According to Feola, only Getty and Exxon have been open on Saturdays the last few weekends.

Feola was unable to contact

Getty owner John Swann about his weekend hours and noted that the station, which is usually open longer hours than most, wasn't open last weekend.

Leo Fiori, manager of Exxon, pumped gas for a few hours last Saturday morning, Feola said, but found the situation too trying.

As far as Feola could determine, stations will open as follows:

Exxon — 7 to 10 a.m.; Mobil — 7 to 10 a.m.; Sunoco — 7 to 8:30 a.m.; Amoco — hasn't been open since June 16 for gas; Gulf — 8 to 10 a.m. and possibly 4 to 6 p.m.; Arco — almost out of July allocation, sporadic opening when gas is available; Getty — open when gas is available; Texaco — 8 to 11 a.m.
